“ I can just see Brendan's sweet little face as he would run to the door at school and ask "I am going to your house today, Mrs. Kelly?" I sometimes would leave him with tears streaming down his cheeks. Other times I'd say, "Yes, Brendan you get to go today." Oh, what a happy child he was as he would yell, "YES! I get get to go today." He was one of the most polite and well mannered boys I've ever had the privilege to babysit. I love him and his family. I will continue to pray for you all.
