“ My condolences to the family. Death is truly an enemy. Thankfully, the bible promises God will wipe tears from all faces & death will soon be swallowed up forever at Isaiah 25:8.

“ Cindy and I had our disagreements when I was a teenager and she was my step mom. The last four or five years we have talked over Facebook and on the phone. I will forever cherish that. To my brothers Lentze and Caleb my heart goes out to you. Christine and Kyle you will be in my prayers as well

“ God bless all of you in this sad occasion. Cindy made me smile with her teasing and sense of humor on my facebook posts.

“ Christine, I am so sorry for your loss. My words cannot heal your hurting, but please know I share your pain. I will always remember Cindy running through the yard with her long pony tail flying behind her. Robert used to say "Cindy can run like a reindeer". Those were good days when we were rearing our children together. Christine, please accept my sincerest sympathy. Frances Polly Hinson

“ Cin and I were new best friends and shared so much about our families and friends, and pets. I met her in a chat room, and our friendship grew until I went to visit with her about 8 years ago. We were so different, but, that seemed to make our friendship sweeter. I am going to miss her sweet spirit, and her loving ways, and her laughter and her caring. God bless you and your family, Miss Cin. Your struggles are over. I have hope to see you once again. When I need comfort, I know I can reach in my pocket and find your hand in there holding mine. I love you always.
