“ Fred exemplified many of the qualities that I remember in our mother. He was humble but strong, loving yet firm, intelligent and unassuming. I dearly love my younger brother, and many precious memories flood my mind and will live within the chambers of my heart even though he has left us, and is in the care of the great God of heaven and earth. Our mother taught us to love one another as she loved us. The love that she taught us by word and example will live on, when we one by one, leave the sphere of time and make the journey into eternity. Fred is gone from the standpoint of being absent from his body, but his love, kindness, strength, passion for people, and his sense of humor will supersede his earthly journey, and by his example many people who live now, and many yet to be born will experience the good side of life. Eternal love to my beloved sisters, Gwendolyn, Janice, and Ann. May the God of comfort provide us with strength and peace in this time of grief.
