“ I will post this again. Ken was a wonderful friend to me and many others at Clark Air Base. He played beautiful piano, classical (moonlight Sonata, as I recall) and pop tunes for us at the service club. He had a deadpan sense of humor I loved. He was always supportive and understanding. Love to Ken and his memory and his family. -Ron Jackson, North Carolina fiction writer and ex-Air Force.

I was blessed to have known you and worked with you in the early nineties. Coming out there to see you in Arizona years later was more memorable than you will ever know. Wished I could have gotten out there again. I will always love you in a way, Ken.

“ Kenneth and I were friends in school. We took piano lessons and had recitals together from Merle Booth, my godmother. He was the best pianist during my time of lessons. I remember his quick wit and his love for MAD Magazine. He was also friends with my late husband, Glen Sigmon. Glen died on April 15th in 2005. They were in band together. It sounds like he was doing things he enjoyed as far as his career. I'm so glad for that. You have my thoughts and prayers through this difficult time. Looking back when these things happen, I ask myself, why didn't you keep up with friends. Love to all.
