“ When we reach heaven, I'm sure there will be cattle grazing in the fields, hay to bale, and tractors to drive. The life of a farmer can't just end here on Earth—there's got to be more to doing what we love when we get to heaven. We'll be reunited with the friends who've gone before us, rejoicing in the welcoming embrace of a farmer, a son, a father, an uncle, and a friend to so many. May heaven be everything you've hoped for—and so much more! Keith, you will missed by so many. But the memories made at that little table in that little store, in that little town.... will last forever.
