“ Had many wonderful times with my Tenn. Momma Ginny. Didnt get to spend a lot of time towards the end due to circumstances that wont be mentioned. We shared many great times in the late 90's and early 2000. She was one of a kind lady and could always handle whatever was thrown at her and believe me there was a lot. I told her some time ago I would not be attending her services and she said she understood. Circumstances were very sad, but shes with the Lord now abs her beloved Tommy and son David. I will always love you momma and spend some good times again on the other side. You are at peace now and flying high with all the Angel's. Save me a seat at the bar please.
Love

“ This is my beautiful Mother. I wrote this for her.

Today, January 14th of the year 2019, I experience the greatest pain I've ever felt in my life, with the passing of my mother. I could write a thousand books, and never begin to describe my feelings and emotions for this woman who gave me life.

I love you forever Mom - Jer-Bear

Momma Went Home – A Tribute to Virginia Ann Hill

*I think back in time
To when I was a kid
I remember hard times
And some things that we did*

*I remember cold nights
With no heat in our home
I search back in my mind
Down these roads we did roam*

*I see her face smiling
As we walked on the beach
Still reaching for stars
And those dreams out of reach*

*I remember the fights
And how I gave her hell
My guilt and my shame
Now I just can not quell*

*I remember her tears
How her pain hurt my heart
But now that she's gone
I don't know where to start*

*I know that she loves me
But now there's a void
A feeling of sorrow
I just can't avoid*

*I think of her now
And my heart skips a beat
I know that she bowed
At our Lord's mercy-seat*

*I know she loves Jesus
And now she's by his side
No longer apart
By this earthly divide*

*I'll never forget her
God knows I'd never try
She's gone with the angels
It's her turn to fly*

*I think about family
How we're spread apart
But I love em all deeply
And they're still in my heart*

*I talked to her, just now outside
She'd just gone home today
I hugged her only six days ago
There's still so much I need to say*

*Such mixed emotions overflowing
Pain, sorrow and a little regret
She's now with God in eternity
But I haven't finished my race yet*

*I'll smile at times I think of her
As I know she watches over me*

*Jealousy raises its ugly head
As I envy that she's finally free*

*So many memories left to share
Experiences I could have with no other
No matter how long we last on earth
We're all given but one Birth-Mother*

*So I'll close now with these few lines
Future pages to await those unspoken
With this worst pain I have ever felt
Today, my heart, is truly broken*

*Momma went home to see Jesus today
Yet I know our souls will never part
Having crossed over that rainbow bridge
But will forever remain in my heart*
