“ Dear Friends,

What an honor to be invited into your home at a time when you were caring for you beloved Mr. McPeak. So Sorry to hear the news of his passing to be with the Lord. On the other hand he spoke to me about his confidence in the power of God to save and seemed so at ease about speaking of that heavenly home. Now may the God who loves and heals the brokenhearted now go to work to heal your hearts as you travel on a grief journey for a while.

Don't forget to tell those sweet stories about a great husband who stood tall for the Lord and loved his family and took great care of them. Someone wrote, "Healing comes through story." May God surround you by people willing to listen and support you through the challenging days ahead.

Don't forget that God is the God of ALL COMFORTS. Seems everything you will need for a grief journey will be and can be provided by a loving Savior who has walked in the footsteps of grief. Isaiah says "He is the man of sorrows acquainted with our grief." So heal well.

Y'all are extraordinary careproviders. You loved him with the full extent of your love as you walked beside him step for step on this journey. Everything that could be provided to bring him comfort you found and brought in. Keep on reading that Bible as you did for him. Now may the Lord show you good days and surround you with a truckload of sweet, sweet memories to keep the love for him growing and abiding and increasing each day of your lives. May the Lord bless you and keep you and may His face shine upon you and may He be gracious unto you. Amen.
